

What About Those "Dahmer Polaroids"?

Why are they circulating online?

THE DAHMER CASE

JUL 12, 2024

14

52

2

Share

Anyone familiar with this case has heard about and probably seen the “Dahmer Polaroids,” a collection of strange images purportedly depicting some of Jeff’s “victims.” These obviously edited images have been circulating online for years. We know they’re not real, not only because they’re examples of bad photoshopping but because we know Jeff Dahmer wasn’t a serial killer.

So, where did these images come from?

Who made them and why?

What is perhaps most curious is the fact that the families of Jeff Dahmer’s alleged “victims” have done nothing in response to the circulation of these images. The families of the “victims” have not pursued legal action to have them removed from internet.

Contrast this with their “outrage” regarding the Netflix series. This selective “outrage”, targeting only new media portrayals (and even walking tours and Hall of costumes) while allowing the "Polaroids" to remain freely available, raises questions about the authenticity of these images. In fact, this pattern of behavior points to a carefully orchestrated PR strategy.

Here are a few examples. You’ll find many more online:

NEW 3 days ago

Our latest game Showdown is finally here! Play our mini-games on BuzzFeed Arcade

CELEBRITY • EVAN PETERS

Evan Peters Has Been Called Out By One Of Jeffrey Dahmer's Victim's Moms After He Won A Golden Globe

The Maury Povich Show The Jeffrey Dahmer Movie Controversy Septen

19K views 1 yr ago ...more

Daily Mail MORE STORIES

'You're just as evil as he was': Sister of Jeffrey Dahmer victim outraged at walking tours of killer's haunts

By Daily Mail Reporter
09:38 05 Mar 2012, updated 13:16 05 Mar 2012

GROUPON Milwaukee

Dahmer Tours - Milwaukee

$25

GROUPON

VICTIM'S MOM SAYS HALLOWEEN COSTUMES TORTURE FAMILIES

10/16/2022 1:00 AM PT

Jeffrey Dahmer-inspired Halloween costumes have already gotten a ton of backlash, but more than anything they're evil and exploit families ... so says one victim's mom, who is urging folks to stay clear of them.

A carefully orchestrated PR strategy

Although we're not going to include them here, a close examination reveals that "Polaroids" circulating online are nothing more than examples of bad photoshop. However, they continue to be shared, fueling further sensationalism around this ridiculous fake news story.

Given that no official case files or records of these images exist, it's reasonable to conclude that they were created solely for the purpose of perpetuating the fake narrative and generating further public interest.

14 Likes · 2 Restacks

Discussion about this post

Comments

Restacks

Write a comment...

Ekoh Ekoh Jul 13

Liked by The Dahmer Case

This is one of the strangest "serial killer" stories I have ever come across. I am surprised at the complexity of the case and of the parties that are actually involved. There is a much bigger story that has never been realized, and it looks nothing like the public version.

I commend all of those involved for digging into this story. The reveals have been quite surprising. I look forward to finding out the whole story. Life is stranger than fiction, as they say.

LIKED (6) REPLY

4 replies

Sana Jul 19 Edited

Liked by The Dahmer Case

Lol I kinda got bullied on Youtube when I told them the Jeffrey Dahmer case is fake and that I was innocent, but I ain't gonna give up.

I don't know but it's like nobody cares. They are just fully consumed in other media crap to get their thoughts ;;; ma heart broke

LIKED (4) REPLY

50 more comments...

© 2025 The Dahmer Case · Privacy · Terms · Collection notice
Substack is the home for great culture