Clarification for Readers...

Just a quick note: I've received some questions about a YouTube channel called Dahmer Analysis that's been hosting some videos I created.

To be clear...

- ◆ I am not the owner of that channel
- ◆ The person who created it was briefly involved in my research but later atter to hijack and control the narrative
- ◆ I've since cut all ties with her after identifying clear signs of infiltration and narrative management behavior

She is not part of my work. She does not speak for me.

And yes—I have reason to believe she was acting under intel guidance to shape and dilute disclosure.

That effort failed.

The record remains intact.

The community saw what happened.

And the real investigation continues—here.

No drama. Just clarity.

RE the claim by "Independent Journalist":

FALSE. I was there with the owner of this Substack FROM THE BEGINNING. She did it all, start everything, did the heavy lifting.

The Youtube channel person came around later on and basically stole her hard work, claiming own. The Youtuber is a thief.

The person you are referring to is actually the person who did all the hard work researching a have taken their work as your own. Just to be clear, in case anyone reads this comment befor deleted, the YouTube channel is run by a legitimate researcher with a background in law enfo and is the person responsible for the hard-hitting research as well as the book recently publis don't expect this comment to last long, but it needs to be said.
